

The Wieser family.

Inspired by first-hand experience.

Me-One Foundation founder Heidi Wieser knows the toll cancer takes on families. As an oncology nurse — and a daughter, wife and friend of cancer patients — Heidi understands that cancer is a radiant disease, one that attacks not only the one afflicted, but also their families and friends.

This knowledge fueled Heidi's dream to create a "port of peace" for cancer patients and their extended families where their pain would be lessened and they could experience a moment in time when fighting cancer was not their only focus.

Join our team & influence the scoreboard.

Fighting cancer is a team sport. The good news is, there are many ways you can be part of the Me-One team and help us renew the strength of patients and families who want to stay in the game and win another round.

- Make a financial contribution to the Me-One Foundation to ensure that additional cancer patients and their families experience a respite weekend at Camp Challenge.
- Sponsor a facet of Camp Challenge — Become a Send A Family To Camp sponsor with a $1,500 donation, or help us offset camp expenses as a Faith & Hope sponsor with a $5,000 donation.
- Volunteer your talents or skills at a future Camp Challenge.
- Recommend a camper or tell us you'd like to attend Camp Challenge.

Keeping life's scoreboard at cancer zero, me one.

The Me-One Foundation is a nonprofit organization dedicated to providing adult cancer patients and their families a respite from the disease. Since 2008, Me-One has hosted a no-cost getaway weekend for cancer patients, their extended families and their supporters.

Through our annual Camp Challenge, we give families impacted by cancer the gift of time — time to rekindle connections, time to laugh, time to share and time to remember what “normal” feels like.

Our mission is supported by a host of national and Northern California organizations and individuals who understand that those fighting cancer sometimes need a time-out to focus on family and fun, rather than illness.

Camp Challenge – Where healing happens.

The Me-One Foundation is singular in its focus. We are all about providing the perfect place for adult cancer patients to disconnect from their diagnosis and recharge their relationships.

Camp Challenge is not about roughing it — in fact, it's about being completely cared for in an inspiring natural setting, and leaving behind the stressful routine of doctor visits and treatments.

Campers and their families participate in a range of activities including games and sports; dancing; singing; skits; arts and crafts; and fireside chats. An on-site spa provides pampering in many forms — massage, manicures and pedicures, to name a few. The entire experience is captured by professional photographers so that campers can later reflect on their retreat experience.

After a visit to Camp Challenge, patients and their guests re-enter their daily lives rested and ready to continue the fight — just ask the more than 1,200 people we've served.
